THE FREE FLOW BOOKS and how they fit together: The Free Flow Manuscripts abbreviated as FFMS) is the original manuscript; and it contained all of both the External Narrative (Ganja Voyage) and the Internal Narrative (Field Notes on Self). Ganja Voyage (abbreviated as GV) is the stand alone version of the external narrative of FFMS. Field Notes on Self (abbreviated as Field Notes) is the stand alone version of the internal narrative of FFMS. Free Flow Receptions, this book, (abbreviated as Receptions) is a stripped down version of Field Notes on Self. By design it focuses ONLY on the transpersonal content of the internal narrative. The RECEPTIONS BOOK: The Free Flow Receptions, this book, is the esoteric heart of The Free Flow Manuscripts. It is the transpersonal core of the internal narrative. In 1974, Jack Wells, a drop out anthropologist, in search of personal meaning, began a do it your self (DIY) investigation into his own mind. The result was first a vast collection of field notes. Then a few years later, Jack wrote The Free Flow Manuscript. The manuscript remained stored in a beer box until it was finally digitally self published in 2010. Free Flow Receptions contains the transcriptions of Jack's™s LSD-25 sessions and a full record of his trance receptions up until the end of the FFMS. Here, in Receptions, for the first time, the transpersonal core of the FFMS is fully revealed, where previously it was camouflaged and disguised by the competing narratives of the big book. Finally, the writing of the FFMS itself is revealed as flowing from the transpersonal receptions. One reader commented on the internal narrative of the FFMS: "The main plot, such as it is, involves a man who conducts research into his own mind and records seemingly paranormal messages from his unconscious. But what at first appears to be paranormal may in fact be the man's inner nature or the alien core of his own being. Another reader commented on the internal narrative of the FFMS: "This inner tale is off the charts strange. For starters we have an atheist who is having religious experiences !! Not orthodox Christian religious ones, to be sure, but spooky mystical ones that, according to the narrator's social personality, can't exist. The narrator/protagonist doesn't fully understand what he is dealing with, but in his notebook, he continues recording the sightings, anyway, thereby leaving a record of his observations for us to ponder."
