

Jungle Roads and Other Trails of Roosevelt, a Book for Boys, Vol. 2 (Classic Reprint)

Presidential chair. Here are lions and elephants and grizzlies and buffaloes. Here are Boy Scouts and prairie children and Oyster Bay youngsters and slum tots and college students and a big-hearted man who loved them all. Here are trappers and hunters and outlaws and cops and boxers and wrestlers and statesmen and rulers. Here are pet kittens and dogs and ponies and even a pet badger. Here is love of adventure; woodcraft and fieldcraft; bird and animal lore; a hatred of meanness and cowardice; a love of home and yet a fondness for new and dangerous trails. Here is a father who not only read to his boys of the pirates of the Spanish Main, but also followed the reading by taking them down to a raft in Oyster Bay to play at pirates with them. Here is a Dad who not only talked to them of wild beasts, but also led them off on hunting and camping trips. (Typographical errors above are due to OCR software and don't occur in the book.)
