

The Horse Fair (Classic Reprint)

Richard III. EE up, old fellow !N ow go on! These words were spoken by a barefooted boy plowing corn in a lonely field; and they were addressed to the old farm-horse which he was driving. He was nearing the end of the last row that was to be plowed that day. Gee up, Kiron! Go on a little farther. Oh, who ever saw so hot a day in June! cried the lad, wiping his face with his sleeve. Whoa, haw! Now, turn in under the shade of the maple, and we ll rest a bit before we go home. Whoa! Loosing the horse from the plow, and then leaving him to take care of himself, the boy threw himself face downward among the grass and blossoming clover that grew in the shade of the tree. It was only five oclock in the afternoon, and he would not be expected at the farmhouse until six. He would have an hour to himself, to rest and read.(Typographical errors above are due to OCR software and dont occur in the book.)About the Publisher Forgotten Books is a publisher of historical writings, such as: Philosophy, Classics, Science, Religion, History, Folklore and Mythology.Forgotten Books Classic Reprint Series utilizes the latest technology to regenerate facsimiles of historically important writings.
